InterLex overview

InterLex is a EU-funded project coordinated by the University of Turin, involving five European-wide academic institutions, a software development company specializing in legal informatics, and a lawyers association. The aim of the two-year project, which started in September 2018, is to develop a platform for providing information, decision support and training on private international law.

The Kick Off Meeting: some numbers

Around 20 participants joined the very engaging discussions that took place at the kick off meeting: apart from the partners, the meeting had (remotely) two invited talks by Prof. Dan Svantesson and Prof. Guido Governatori.
